National Council is trying to enlarge Group hosteling in order to broaden knowledge about its opportunities. Hostels will be available to groups using them in connection with motor or bus tours...but in accordance with the requirements in Par. 11, Restatement of Youth Hostel Customs:

"Youth organization groups may use hostels on motor tours provided they stay two nights at each hostel and use the intervening day exploring the local countryside in carrying out the educational purpose of their trip and in participating in hosteling activities." Such groups must adhere to our regular customs.

Noted also in Par. 11 is "Houseparents may revoke the privilege of using cars to get to youth hostels if this privilege is abused."

CYCLING-1895

---Pleasure-Cycling, by H. Clyde.....the chapter on
'Poetry of Motion.'

"You will find in cycling not only pleasure, but health. The sport fosters wholesome thoughts and sane habits of living; and the purely healthy excitement which it brings in such large measure makes unattractive that gross artificial excitement which is the chief attraction to the use of stimulants.

"Wheeling levels all degrees, and disproves the adage that "crabbed age and youth cannot live together." Like other healthy and manly sports, this brings to the surface the boyishness latent in every man who is worth his salt. The wheelman is your modern Don Quixote, who finds his way beset with small marvelous adventures....

"He chats unreservedly with the farmer hoeing his corn, or the keeper of the country grocery where he stops to buy a bad cigar. He feels a certain benevolent superiority to the pedestrians whom he meets upon the road, and as for horses, he regards them as but poor creatures: knowing, as he does that his steed of steel will never tire, or stumble, or kick, or balk or run away."

The first prize in the 1895 New York Easter Parade was won by a lady wearing a tremendous hat with a miniature bicycle on top. Society and celebrity went awheel. Lillian Russell rode a gold-plated bicycle and the Duke of Marlborough was arrested in Central Park for riding with his feet on the handle bars.

Since there were no improved roads, bicycle clubs built under paths beside the others and charged yearly fees for their use. To Brooklyn wheelmen and women, the opening of the 5-mile bicycle path from Prospect Park to Coney Island on June 15, 1895 was the most important event of the season: -- some 30,000 people were on wheels that day.

***A TALE OF THE SKI TRAIL....A SOGGY SAGA!

Dear Rob,

You won't mind, I hope.....I took your skis on a hosteling trip to Laurel Mt.....and oh my beat-up biceps, what a wonderful, crazy time we had! Did I learn to ski?-----

Well, my herringbone looked like an old hambone of Bo's; my slalom was more like salami (cold cut, hard to the end) and my snowplow was combination jack knife dive and bulldozer---all humiliatingly performed before the eyes of the skiing class at Seven Spring Farm. I didn't care to spend the money for expert instruction. I wanted to make myself Exhibit A of 'Don't - Let-This-Happen-To-You.'

"Now, baby, let us not have any sitting down." The instructor was talking not to me, but to a little ten-year old. For me he had only a pitying glance---one that plainly said, "Mein Himmel, do you need lessons!" It was only luck that kept a piece of your skis from joining the autographed, broken bits of equipment that hung in memorium around the Lodge fireplace. Bruce Merritt wasn't so lucky. He cracked a rib...tobogganning...found it out a week later.

In time I was damp and damaged enough to realize: experience is not the best school for skiers. So, I stood on the fringes of the class and eavesdropped on about 75¢-worth of lessons. "Lean away from the slope; look over your shoulder, up the hill." (oops, untwist your knees, untangle your skis and pick yourself out of the snow) And practice a bit, discover it works and come to a stop, standing up. (!) What a pity the season's over.

As coffee stops became more frequent, we watched good skiers from the big, picture windows and dreamed of another year: We'd ride that tow to the top of the slope, We'd show them a Christiana that was full of finesse. We'd buy a new sweater like that snazzy chartreuse one and we'd have a timberline tan, too.....

Now, I am putting your skis back up in the cellar rafters. I am putting my own battered bones to bed. But, I'm making a note on the calendar to reserve the first snowy day next winter for more of this exciting sport. You keep it in mind too---come up North then. Show me how to stay on my feet.

Love,

Fran

P.S. Did you know Christiana is the name formerly given to Oslo, capital of Norway?

You certainly enjoy Hosteling, don't you?
---Help tell your friends about it, then.

No doubt your associates in other clubs and organizations will be delighted to hear one of our exciting talks on hiking, cycling and climbing as presented by our Speaker's Bureau.

Give Bill Comensky the names of officers in your other affiliations. He will schedule a fascinating travelogue in Hosteling style for them. Call Bill at Pl. 1-0260.

TAKE AN EXTENDED TRIP THIS SUMMER WITH PITTSBURGH COUNCIL, A. Y. H....

IF YOU ARE PLANNING your fifth and sixth vacation with Pittsburgh Council, AYH, as many of us are, you know that travel the Hostel way--biking or hiking and staying at Youth Hostels, is an exhilarating experience.

"You travel light, living out of a knapsack or saddle bags; you are an active part of a close knit co-ed group with a capable and mature leader, sharing experiences and responsibilities; you see more, do more and have more fun; you get used to doing your own cooking---and learn to eat it---washing your own clothes, accepting hard beds, strenuous exercise and unexpected situations as your way of life.

"You make friends at every turn of the road and your days in the sun, wind and (let's face it) rain expand your life's horizon and by coming to know yourself better, you are far more able to appreciate the viewpoint of others.....And you say with thousands who have done it, 'A Hostel trip is the best way to learn the world.'"

If, on a globe-circling flight, your plane made a forced landing and you learned that the people who gathered round were talking Slovenian, you would naturally assume that you were in Yugoslavia. Below, are ten other languages you might hear.

Can you mate them up? If you get all 10 right you must be Rand McNally Berlitz, in person.

this guy remind you of?

"You don't say." Do you recognize the quotes? One of Mellon's budding scientists is Mr. X. This hosteler has been motating in style since he bought a classy chassy of a Buick last summer.... Isn't a native Pittsburgher --- he hails from points West. One of these points is home, complete with chinchilla farm..... "picture this now, Dad....." Our mystery man is a snap with a camera. He goes in for color photos, Retina II, the camera. Who is this fellow with the pleasing personality? May I introduce, your friend, my friend, everybody's friend(?) It's Hugh Tobin by Tom Bryson

Try this method of permanently writing your name on your knife blade:

First clean the blade well, and coat it thoroughly with soap. Then take an ordinary lead pencil. Write the name on the blade. Next insert the blade in a strong solution of hot water and copper sulphate (which can be bought at the chemist's) and leave it there for five minutes. Remove the blade and wipe it clean. The name will be found to be permanently etched on it.

---A.Y.H. has prepared many for Army life...we will soon lose Bill Comensky to the Air Cadets. Hate to lose hostellers but we're very happy to welcome new members.

---We have been enriched by --- Mount Fitzpatrick who has a warm and friendly Irish smile; Vinc Roelf, a born hiker and a handy man to have around-he's an electrician.

---The teen-age set now has Gary Fletcher. If Gary is as good as his mother on cycling, he'll do all right. (She kept up with the veterans on the first trip last year.)

---It gets mighty confusing when you talk about John. Which one? There's John Matthews, Crable, Ferchak and our latest addition, John Behun. J.B. is one of the Mellon Institute crowd. He and Mount happen to be from the same state, New Jersey.

---Marjorie Collins has shown the Hostelling way to another - Joan Schmee, is her latest recruit.

---Losing another favorite member to New York--Jean McDowell will be moving there around August.

---Fred Freuthal, Bob McDonald and Buffy Audie are among the ones from our Council planning to go to Europe this summer.

HURRIED HIKER

Distance, distance, distance
On and on and on,
Passing farm and hamlet
Whoosh! and then he's gone.

Whizzing down the roadway,
Puffing up a hill,

Sliding down the mountain,
Never standing still.

Don't stop to pick that apple,
Don't dally on that lawn,

Distance, distance, distance
On and on and on.

NOT SO HURRIED HIKER

Plodding along, singing a song,
Always a little bit slower,

Stopping to lie and look at the sky
Wishing the hills were made lower.

'Way in the back adjusting his pack
Or halting to retie a shoe,

Well, what do you know? Now where did they go?
Hey, wait! Oi Yoi Yoi! Yoo Hoo!
