SNOW NOTES

cover and article by Fred Parker

The cover is composed of the eighty shape categories of snow crystals according to Magono and Lee and the International Snow Classification for solid precipitation pictorial representatives, excluding ice pellets and hail. Cooled particles or dust or salt form the nucleus of a snow crystal upon which condenses subfreezing microscopic water drops. Temperature and humidity in the cloud determine the type of crystal formed. Higher temperature and moisture generally produce more intricate and larger crystals. During a storm, crystals of one type usually dominate for only a few minutes before being replaced by another type. A crystal falling into air warmer than it, has rays shoot out until the crystal is warmed to the new temperature before a new growth pattern begins. Symmetrical stellar and plate crystals are the beautiful generally thought of crystals, but asymmetrical crystals are the most abundant. There are approximately 350 crystals in a cubic inch or a million in a volume 2"X2"X5'. The diagram indicates conditions for formation of different types of crystals.

NEEDLES:  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{3}{8}$ " long, slender six-sided with fine points from either end, common, being most of the storm, from low clouds, conglomerate by freezing together and splintering when hitting a hard surface. Electrical discharges are possible.

PLATES are hexagonal, usually  $\frac{3}{32}$ " but to twice as large. Usually a design on the surface, which reflects light. They often occur with dendrites

DENDRITE, six-pointed star to  $\frac{1}{2}$ " across but can conglomerate by interlocking to 2" flakes, stack on top or branches. Usually a small percent of storm. Often occur with plates.

SPATIAL PLATE AND DENDRITE complex. Three dimensional, formed in abundant moisture. Of high concentration.

COLUMN-six-sided column to  $\frac{1}{4}$ " long with flat or a single pointed end, often having hollow air spaces. Not common and come from extremely high cirrus clouds.

DECEMBER TIPS AND TALES.....

...by Joe Hoechner

--Council thanks go out to the Hardy Hikers who participated in the Annual Tuscarora Trail Maintenance Hike. (you can't really call it a 'work party'). Lead by Jack Leahy and Cliff Ham, George Bauer, Joe Hoechner and Jack Peth repainted blazes, trimmed brambles and cut up deadfall trees.

All this happened while convoying sunny skys, mild temperatures and beautiful ridge top scenic views. If you missed out this year maybe you can enjoy the trip next year...late October...Thanks, again!!!

--Holiday shopping at Pittsburgh AYH? Well, maybe just for stocking stuffers. Publications Chairperson Bruce Sundquist has available the new AYH Cookbook, priced right at $3.00 a copy. Also other Council publications. Call Bruce at 327-8737 to reserve your copy.

Storekeeper Joe Hoechner has a good supply of the Bicyclist's friend, "Fanny Bumpers" for $3.00.--One size fits all. Also the new blue Council t-shirt. 50/50 mix(fabric), sizes S,M,L,XL for $4.00 each. See Joe at any Thursday meeting to make a purchase.

--Are you interested in Solar Energy or learning how to save money thru Energy Conservation? The Western Pennsylvania Solar Energy Association can help you by providing free information at their monthly meetings

Their Dec. 16th meeting (Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.) will deal with "Solar Legislation" and will feature a speaker from the Governor's Energy Council. The meetings are held at the Beechwood Farms Nature Preserve, 614 Dorseyville Rd., Fox Chapel.

For more information about W.P.S.E.A. or for directions to the meetings, call: 673-5609 or 781-0108.

--Ski Vermont, Anyone? ...You can get a copy of their 1982 X-C Ski Touring area guide for free by writing to:

X-C Vermont
61 Elm Street
Montpelier, Vermont 05602

Or if your ski style is strictly downhill, you can write for a directory of Vermont Downhill ski areas:

Ski Vermont
Vermont Travel Division
Montpelier, Vermont 05602

--Keep the weekend of Feb 19-21, 1982 open. This is our Annual Council Winter Weekend to be held at Camp Harmony, outside Hooversville, Pa. (WHERE?) See the reservation form which will be in the Dec., Jan., and Feb. newsletters. Remember space is limited, first come, first served. A.Y.H. members ONLY.

--Do you live out in the 'country'? If you do live a few miles outside of Pittsburgh, you may be missing out on some A.Y.H. trips. Don't be shy about calling a trip leader to meet the group at the trailhead. If the trip description indicates that there's a group heading in your direction, SPEAK UP.

If you can't set up a trailhead meeting: Time and location, perhaps a rendezvous at a local landmark will do. (hmmmmmm...sounds risque....) (Don't expect a front door pick-up!)

MORE TIPS AND TALES.....

--Pittsburgh Council A.Y.H. is growing!!! Membership at the end of 1981 stands at about 1700--a new high!!!

Sometime during 1982 we will gain our 2000th member--perhaps a celebration is in order? With any luck our A.Y.H. staff computer can figure out the Thursday night when that person should walk in to join. Maybe the A.Y.H. Board of Directors should give out a prize. (a weekend in Cleveland maybe?)

Any suggestions? Tell President Barry Govenor if you have any ideas.

THE ROUGHER THE BETTER CLUB NEWS

by Steve Tubbs (call 751-2158 if you have contributions to the following:)

Alarmed by reports of increasing sissification of A.Y.H. trips, Norm and Steve have decided to award recognitions of merit to rougher, wilder and crazier A.Y.H. trips. Past achievements--gruelling cycle rides, cliff hanging (on only one or less fingers), rainy night hikes, 3:00 am subzero jogging, etc., have gone unrecognised.

Nominations should be forwarded to Norm, Steve or Evil Kneivil (Honorary Chairperson)

Recognitions will be awarded at midnight in December or some rainy mountain top.

OUR MOTTO: The Rougher, the Better!!!
